Hazard Identification

What is a hazard? Basically, a hazard is the potential for harm or an adverse effect (for example, to people as health effects, to organizations as property or equipment losses, or to the environment).

What is hazard identification? Hazard identification is part of the process used to evaluate if any particular situation, item, thing, etc. may have the potential to cause harm.

On the back side are some photos. Please have crew identify the hazards.

Last week's Bonus Question: Last week, what Olympic Foreman was a key member of a team that administered CPR to a fellow trades worker ultimately saving the persons life?

Answer: A couple of weeks ago, Don Kohloff, noticed another trade partner's foreman looking like he was not feeling well. Don asked him if he was ok, and he responded that he thought he was coming down with the flu. When Don returned back to the area, the trade partner's foreman was laying on the ground with a co-worker attempting to get his pulse. Don noticed he was having issues, offered to help and noticed there was no pulse. Don started CPR and said other site workers stepped in to help. Shortly after the Highway Patrol showed up with an AED. The AED administered a shock which brought back his heart beat. In another few minutes the ambulance arrived and hauled the worker to the hospital. Surgery was successful, the foreman is currently at home recovering. At-A-Boy to Don for stepping in and making good use of the training we have received.
