Focus Four

It has been proven by OSHA and our insurance company that the top four hazards that injure construction workers are: Falls, Struck-by, Caught-in, Electrocutions.

Below is a short list of how Olympic employees should protect themselves.

- Falls: When exposed to a fall greater than 6', you must either be guard railed or tied off, holes must be covered, or proper use of a ladder.
- Struck-by: Wear Hi-V clothing around moving equipment, location of hands when operating certain tools/materials.
- Caught-in: Overhead obstructions when raising your lift.
- Electrocutions: Inspect your cords, use GFCI protected power supply, do not go into breaker panels.

We are going into a short week but a long Thanksgiving weekend. We need to practice "social distancing". We continue to hear information on the news about limiting the size of our family gatherings for Thanksgiving. YES, we know it's a lot easier said than done, but Covid is still alive and well so please take extra precautions.
